

Four Ways To Learn!

RAA Web-Based PC & Business Skills online training and testing offers learners the ability to choose training paths that fit their learning styles.

Microsoft Office Specialist

Training to help employees meet industry standards begins with Microsoft Office Specialist courses. Employees with certifications under their belts know how to work faster and smarter and can help you gain the edge over your competition.

Task-Oriented

Have you ever wished you could find training for a specific type of task in one place? Now you can. Our task-oriented track organizes training based on what type of task it's associated with, so can find what you need—and only what you need—in one easy-to-reach place.

Prescriptive

The Prescriptive track is a great way to determine what you know and what you need to know. It's designed to assess your ability and give you just the right amount of training. It's ideal for those who already have some prior knowledge who need to round out their skills.

Level 1-2-3

Effective content delivery that starts with coverage for fundamental skills and builds through intermediate and advanced levels, this straightforward track presents training and testing in the format we are probably all most familiar with.
